

Katariina Gehrmann (née Silander)

Member of the IHI JU Science and Innovation Panel

Chief Medical Officer (CMO)

Mehiläinen Group

Katariina Gehrmann (née Silander) is the Chief Medical Officer of Mehiläinen Group. She holds a PhD in healthcare operations management and is a medical specialist (MD) in Public Health from the medical faculty of the University of Helsinki. She also holds a MSc (BA and Econ.) degree from Aalto University.

She has broad experience from the healthcare sector as she has worked in academia, consulting and service provision, both as a practicing physician and in management and leadership roles. Prior to her current position, she was the Director of Digitalization and Innovation Services at HUS Helsinki University Hospital, Department of Children and Adolescents. She has, among other positions, worked at Aalto University as a researcher and Research Director at the Institute of Healthcare Engineering, Management and Architecture (HEMA Institute), and has international experience in healthcare and healthcare industry consulting from her work at McKinsey & Company and Nordic Healthcare Group. She has participated in and led numerous different research and development projects funded by e.g., Business Finland, The European Union and the Prime Minister's office in Finland spanning different areas such as healthcare digitalization and federated data development, value-based healthcare, and mass customization and modularization of healthcare environments.