Dr. Stefan Busnatu (cardiologist) is a Lecturer in the Cardiology Department of Bagdasar-Arseni Emergency Clinical Hospital, Bucharest, Vice Dean of the Faculty of Medicine-UMFCD, and also the Coordinator of the Innovation and e-Health Center (CieH) within UMFCD. CieH aims to develop students' skills and competencies in digital innovation and eHealth activities in order to increase competitiveness and adapt to the digitization of the health systems.

Complementary to all these activities, he is involved in research projects with other European partners, in preventive and rehabilitation cardiology, such as Horizon2020 InteropEHRate and vCare, with the main purpose to identify and promote the best strategies for reducing the incidence of cardiovascular disease and improving the quality of life of those who have already been diagnosed with these affections.

On a national level he was appointed Chairman of the Working Group for the development and implementation of the national eHealth strategy 2021-2027 by the Romanian Ministry of Health [07/2020 – 03/2021], and currently is a Honorary Advisor for the Minister of Health on digitalization matters.
